

Cigar
Rendezvous[™]
INTERNATIONAL

S.T. Dupont
PARIS 1872

BE EXCEPTIONAL

The Official ST Dupont Guide to London's Premium Cigar Venues

VOLUME THREE

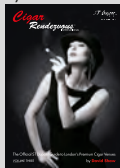

www.cigarrendezvous.com

by David Shaw

Contents

The Official ST Dupont Guide to London's Premium Cigar Venues

by David Shaw

Volume 3

Editor: David Shaw

Managing Editor:
Mariangela Palazzi-Williams

Cover Concept: MW Creates/David
Shaw

Media Consultant: Simon Barnes

Website Design: Chris Samson

Graphic Design: MW Creates

Contributors:

Giuseppe Ruo, Nic Wing, Charlie
Whitting, Martin Black (Photography),
Kacper Hamilton, Stuart London,
Oscar, David Clark, Denise Taylor,
Alfredo Garcia-Valdes, Robert Emery

Printing: Chris Mangan Aztec Print Services

Published: Indulgent Publications Ltd

Tel: +44 (0)7984 284 596

Email: bonvivantpub@hotmail.com

Visit our websites:

www.cigarrendezvous.com

© 2014 Indulgent Publications Ltd -
All rights reserved

ISBN 978-0-9574613-2-1

Indulgent Publications Ltd wishes to make it clear that the views expressed in Cigar Rendezvous International do not necessarily represent those of any of its selected venues, distributors,
advertisers or ST Dupont

Cigar Rendezvous International is entirely owned by Indulgent
Publications Ltd

NB: Cigar Rendezvous International
is also available through selected premium cigar merchants, selected departmental stores and fine bookstores in central London and Dubai

4
Exceptionally
Yours

7 A word from...
Alfredo Garcia-
Valdes

8 Out of Town...
BiCE Sky Bar

9 A word from...
Giuseppe Ruo

10 Shaking up "the Street"

13 Out of Town...
The H Hotel

14 Elevated Senses and so... Virgin!

16 Cigar Al Fresco
Venues at a glance

18 Venues

41 Accommodating Hotels...
Crowne Plaza London The City
The Cricket Club and Diciannove

42 Cigar Nirvana...
Espectáculo! Grandioso!!

44 A word from...
Robert Emery

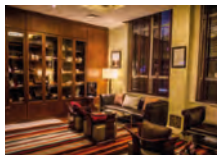

45 A word from...
Kacper Hamilton

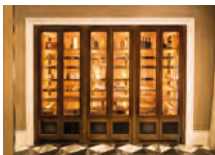

46 Cigar Nirvana...
"A Smoking Voyage" of Epicurean Taste and Inifinate Variety ...

67 A word from...
Dave Clark

68 Out of Town...
The Villa Rosa Kempinski

69 Redefining the State of Art

72 Accommodating Hotels...
A Birthday Surprise... of Horses, Guards, Teatimes and... Spamatot!

76 A word from...
Nic Wing

78 Dining Nirvana...
"For all Seasons and Senses"

80 Dining Nirvana...
Therefore all seasons shall be sweet to thee

A word from...

"In Search of Shangri-La" (the art of selecting a Cigar)

by Kacper Hamilton

"If we have not found the heaven within we have not found the heaven without" James Hilton, Lost Horizon

Selecting the right cigar should be considered a personal choice grounded in taste, experience and intuition. As each year goes by, my selection is becoming more obsessive and meticulous. I used to leave the house with two cigars, one for myself and another for a friend, whereas now I take around 10-12!

Choosing a cigar should involve all of one's senses while taking into account also environment, companions, temperature, gastronomy, time and the related activity, be it talking or reading. Smoking a Puro should be an immersive activity, not something done simply to pass the time.

When I open my humidor, I am at first mesmerised by the beautiful smell and the aesthetics; it is 'Shangri-La' in a box. Although I love Cuban Havanas, I try to keep my selection as wide as possible. This is a matter of personal taste; a passionate smoker would have his own habits and attraction to certain brands and regions. Each cigar has its own strength, size and shape. The three main sizes are Coronas, Panetelas and Lonsdale; personally, I prefer the Robusto, slightly shorter than the Corona yet larger in gauge. However, the size of a cigar does not indicate its strength, which is instead determined by the tobacco filler and the wrapper. Large-gauge cigars tend to burn at a cooler temperature than thin ones, hence they can offer a smoother taste.

The strength of a cigar is generally indicated by its colour: the darker the cigar, the stronger the taste. Before being boxed and shipped, cigars are categorised into various shades, ranging from black to brown to green: Oscuro, Maduro, Maduro Colorado, Colorado, Colorado Claro, Claro and Clarísimo.

When talking of cigars one must indicate the brand, the type and finally the coloration. Size is measured by length and the ring gauge. For example, a Partagas Serie-D No. 4 is 4.8" in length with a ring gauge of 50.

Sincere consideration and respect is necessary for this sacred ritual. There is no better feeling than a well-selected cigar and its perfect smoking – it is hypnotic!

One final note, I personally keep the bands of all the cigars I have smoked into a large vintage Montecristo ceramic pot; each label encapsulates a precious memory...

To quote Davidoff, 'A wisely chosen cigar, to me, is like a weapon against certain of life's torments; in some mysterious way, a little blue smoke chases them away'.

Editor's Notes

1. Apart from being a true cigar aficionado, Kacper also happens to be one the finest glass artists in Europe: he has a remarkable portfolio of quite scintillating limited editions both practical and aesthetic. Visit his website and you will see what I mean!

2. For the curious... a 'Puro' is a cigar that was made entirely from the tobaccos of one county, it is the Spanish term for cigar meaning 'pure'. Cigar manufacturers who make Puros consider it a great honour to be able to achieve such a level of sufficiency, as it gives them more control over the consistency and quality of the finished product.

Photographer: Lucia Cardenas
www.luciocardenas.com